

5 Journal Prompts on Gratitude

WORLD MENTAL HEALTH DAY

Thursday, October 10, 2024

Research shows that starting the day with gratitude can have a positive impact on overall outlook and mental health. With this in mind, The Renfrew Center is offering a journal prompt to encourage the practice of gratitude on World Mental Health Day.

Reflect on the following:

- What aspects of your mental health are you most grateful for today? How have you grown mentally and emotionally over the past year?
- Reflect on your mental health journey. What are the small moments or habits that have positively impacted your well-being? How can you continue to nurture your mental health in the coming weeks?
- Take a few minutes to tune into your thoughts and emotions. What do you notice about your current mental state? How can mindfulness help you stay present and balanced?
- Imagine your ideal mental health a year from now. What steps can you take to work towards that vision? What support or resources might help you along the way?
- Write a letter to yourself offering kindness and understanding for any struggles you've experienced. What words of encouragement do you need to hear right now?

Be grateful for what you have. Be proud of how you got here.
Know you can navigate your current challenges just as you have before.
